A group show featuring new works by ten of India's highly accomplished artists, each with his/her own distinct genre will be on display in London.

A season in India changes dramatically and with it lives of the people. The whole pattern of the day adapts itself to the season and the advent of each is celebrated with ritualistic song, dance & festivals, often propitiating the Divine to ward off calamities of draught, floods, or plague. (in rural India, especially). The suite of paintings that represent an Indian summer in the present exposition share despite their very individualistic and therefore distinctive styles, an inherent joie de vivre, in the choice of colour-palette or mood.

Inspired by the presence of colour, in the skies, in the paddy fields, in the life of people around them, the artists appear to have dipped their brushes in the purples, crimsons, greens, yellows and blues and given expression to their own feelings, associations, memories. In the painted images and sculpture, we share some of those thoughts.

The show features works of Anjolie Ela Menon, Arpana Caur, Jayasri Burman, Lalu Prasad Shaw, Laxma Goud, Paresh Maity, Rini Dhumal, Sakti Burman, Shipra Biswas & Thota Vaikuntam.

This is the third show in London being jointly organised by Art Alive Gallery and S.A.Fine Arts, London. The earlier two shows drew huge response from the high net worth NRIs based in London. These shows were a solo show of Thota Vaikuntam held in November 2005 and a group show of six eminent artists – Tatva which was previewed at V&A, London in May 2006.
